

Publishing your book with the IPA and Routledge

Global reach - A personal editorial experience - Guidance and knowledge based on decades of expertise

Who are the Routledge editorial team?

- We're a small, experienced editorial team who provide a personal experience, backed by the resources, visibility and specialisation of a large international company
- Our standard processes include thorough editorial checks, a full professional copyedit, and clear and specific guidance on common concerns like permissions, title selection, word count and audience needs
- Our books are available in multiple formats, including a wide range of eBook formats

What sales and marketing support does Routledge offer to IPA authors?

- Routledge's international sales teams work with institutions, third-party sellers and bookstores both before and after your book has published to maximise its visibility
- Our special sales team is based in the UK and the US and has international reach; they are on hand to help with bulk ordering, discounted rates, custom publishing, copies for your events and professional uses, and institutional deals
- Our international marketing teams are highly specialised, targeting the primary audience for your book and drawing on decades of experience and research
- We offer free author copies, contributor copies and review copies of your book, and an author discount rate for additional copies, as well as an Author Affiliate Sales programme for copies sold through your own website
- We'll promote your book and related events through our social media channels, provide you with tailored marketing materials for launches and presentations, and offer a discount code for attendees
- A specialised Author Marketing team is available to support you as you promote your book to your own networks
- Our Author Directions guides, a series of free resources for authors on topics ranging from promoting your book on social media to organising your own launch, are available here
- IPA members are entitled to a 30% discount on all Routledge titles, and new series titles are announced on a landing page created just for IPA members
